This was the fourth session for faculty members as a continuance of the second session which is being organised by various departments. The session focused on "Structuring an Effective Research Paper". This session was conducted for faculty members as a continuance of the second session which is being organised by various departments. The session focused on "Structuring Research Papers" with an objective to equip the faculty members to publish a research paper.

The Resource persons were identified by the Research & IP cell through its members. The session was conducted The PG departments and the undergraduate departments of Commerce, management, Science, Department of Language and Humanities conducted separate sessions.

Each resource person was equipped with enough resources to explain the structure of a research paper and how to convert the paper into publication. The faculty members actively participated in the session and most of the faculty members showed interest in framing the research paper. In total more than 60 in-house faculty members participated.
