India is one of the most religiously and ethnically diverse nations in the world. A fashion show was conducted by the student's council under the supervision of the cultural coordinator of SFS college, and the theme of the show was Culture Traditions Diversity.

Culture is defined as people's way of life. It entails the way of dressing, speaking, food habits, religious practices, and expressions in art, dance, and so on. India is so rich in diversities from the south to the north, and the west to the east having eighteen languages officially with many dialects, and varied way of life practically in different states. Life in India is a celebration of these differences in culture.

India is the cradle for few religions and people respect each religion whether they are born in India or came from outside. Indian culture is a blend of various cultures belonging to diverse religions, who celebrate various festivals throughout the year.

Indian Culture is one of the oldest cultures in the world. India had an urban civilization even during the Bronze age. The Indus Valley Civilization (Harappan Civilization) dates to 3300 BC – 1300 BC. Distinct cultures that are different from each other co-exist together in a single country. Thus, In India there is unity amidst vast cultural diversity. The way people live in India is reflected in their culture.

Unity in Diversity: India is a land of unity in diversity where people of different sects, castes, and religions live together. India is also called the land of unity in diversity as different groups of people co-operate with each other to live in a single society. Unity in diversity has also become the strength of India.

Secularism: The word secularism means equality, impartiality, etc. towards all religions. India is a secular country, which means, equal treatment of all the religions present in India.

Students of all undergraduate courses participated in groups in the show and represented different states' cultures and traditions in their attire and costumes. The students also presented the show in such a way that we can see the traditions of India in one place.
