Ethnic Day and Colour Week 2K19

Date: 16th March 2019

Venue: College Auditorium

Conducted by: Staff & College Management

In India there are many religions, languages, cultures, festivals and the way of living. From Kashmir to Kanyakumari and from Maharashtra to West Bengal, there are so many variety and in all these diversity, the people of this ancient land is united in spirit and mind. When Ethnic days are celebrated, the diversity and unity is being celebrated.

Indian culture teaches everyone to respect the people and behave well. 'Adhithi Devo bhava' is a maxim that is followed in India meaning the guest is equal to God. The wish 'Namaste' is said with folded hands and a slight bend meaning this dictum that the guest is respected. The great nation accepts all people and never hurts anyone and that's the essence of the culture of Hindustan.

Indians wear ethnic outfits like ghagra-choli, dhoti-kurta, salwar-suit, kurta-pajama, sarees in weddings and some special occasions. This ethnic wear is followed by people of all ages. Indians decide clothes according to occasion otherwise it's based on the relation like if the relation is like "dur ke ristedar"(Hindi words) then they aren't extraordinary. Lots of ethnic fashion is available these days. Many sub-style of ethnic wear are also available like Gujrati ethnic wear, Rajputana-ethnic wears, Panjabi-ethnic wears, Marathi ethnic wear, Islamic-ethnic wear and much more.

Much different dance styles also come with their own ethnic- traditional wear that type of dance is called folk dance. Now, Indian ethnic wear is a collaboration with the western wear that is called fusion wear. Fusion wear looked so amazing that it was truly worth it for buying fusion wear clothes and for that you can switch onto mydesiwear.com because we have a huge collection of Indian-ethnic wear and fusion wear that you can get more choice of products.

Indian ethnic wear and Indian culture are two sides of one coin that means both are present in Indian culture in a different way but the purpose is the same. When people wrap themselves in Indian ethnic wear then it looks really adorable because Indian culture is automatically coming out.

As the world outside becomes a smaller and an increasingly interconnected Global village, the campus of St Francis de Sales College has also become a melting pot of diverse cultures. With students from the various states of India, the college also amalgamates a number of foreign cultures as well. The student population is a unique mixture of youth from different countries of Asia and Africa like Nigeria, Thailand, and Italy etc.

As a result, the Ethnic Day is a much anticipated and vibrant celebration of the cultures that the student body represents. The students and faculty of the college come dressed in their ethnic wear and celebrate the spirit of unity and inclusiveness. The celebration of Ethnic Day in its typical style adds more colour and energy to the day.

The Student Council and the Cultural Coordinator of St. Francis De Sales College had organized Ethnic Day for Student and the Faculty members. Girls were dressed elegantly in Ghagras, Lehengas and traditional Sarees and the boys wore Lungis, Dhotis and even bejewelled turbans, like those worn by kings in ancient times. Jeans and T-shirts were not to be seen anywhere in the sprawling campus. Before celebrating ethnic day, the College Students' Council decided that all the students had to follow the dress colour code for one week and it is specifically named as colour week. Fr. Lalu MSFS was the Chief Guest of the programme.

The main message of the celebration was to respect the traditions and recognize the culture of the respective countries. It was a day filled with fun and frolic, culture and tradition everywhere across the campus of St. Francis de Sales College. The whole college had a festive atmosphere.

On the day the students performed a dance on the stage and few of the Desalites also sang beautiful songs from various languages. Ethnic day was a colourful and vibrant celebration. All the students were enthralled and were eagerly waiting for the day to come. On the day all the students were elegantly dressed in the ethnic wear and all the Desalites were looking stunning in their respective ethnic wears.
