The objective of the Program:

A crossword puzzle is one of the ways to help students learn new definitions and terms, build their confidence, and improve team-building activities. Crossword puzzles are a form of a jigsaw puzzle for words. These are designed horizontally or vertically with black and white shaded squares. The motive of these puzzles is to enhance the problem-solving skills of individuals. It is presumed that active involvement in cognitively stimulating fun activities viz. Crosswords may also be helpful in the expansion of vocabulary, stimulates thinking capacity, boosts confidence and fastens up the learning capacity.

A Crossword puzzle activity was conducted among 5th-semester students of Bachelor of Computer Applications organized by Professor Veena. A total of 56 students participated in this activity. A crossword puzzle consisting of 15 questions on Computer Science topics was prepared and divided into two sections: the cross-section had 8 questions and the down section contained 7 questions. The class was divided into groups. Each group included 5 members.

The outcome of the program: On average, out of 15 questions, one mark each, the students scored 80.6% and most of the groups responded correctly on questions. Students had an enjoyable experience and also helped them to refresh their topics.
